

Your Lawn May Have A Drinking Problem!

Fortunately, help is at your fingertips!

Overwatering can encourage:

Remember: Overwatering can damage your lawn and hurt your investment.

Dollarweed

Chinch bug damage

Excessive thatch, particularly in St. Augustinegrass

To control pests, weeds and other lawn diseases, don't invest your money in expensive lawn rehabilitation, such as pesticides, fungicides and herbicides. Instead...

Follow this Healthy Lawn Rx:

- Irrigate only as needed, once plants are established
- Establish a deep, drought-tolerant root system
- Don't throw water on a drowning plant
- The absolute last thing you want to do is irrigate a lawn wet from rainfall
- Use mulch and fertilizer properly
- Plant the right plant in the right place
